Justice in Aging is a national organization that uses the power of law to fight senior poverty by securing access to affordable health care, economic security, and the courts for older adults with limited resources.

Since 1972 we’ve focused our efforts primarily on fighting for people who have been marginalized and excluded from justice, such as women, people of color, LGBTQ+ individuals, and people with limited English proficiency.

Ageism

• Life-cycle considerations should be used as a tiebreaker if there are not enough resources to provide to all patients within a priority group, with priority going to younger patients. It is a valuable goal to give individuals equal opportunity to pass through the stages of life. This does not rely on considerations of one’s intrinsic worth or social utility. Rather, younger individuals receive priority because they have had the least opportunity to live through life’s stages. When individuals are asked to consider situations of absolute scarcity of life-sustaining resources, most believe younger patients should be prioritized over older ones.
Compounding Systemic Discrimination

• COVID-19 Hospitalizations per 100k Medicare Beneficiaries
Compounding Systemic Discrimination

• Black older adults have higher rates of diabetes, heart disease and stroke. They also have higher rates of disability relative to white older adults.
Compounding Systemic Discrimination

• Women typically make less money than men, which generates less available income and savings in retirement compared to men.
  • Black women’s lifetime loss of earnings totaled nearly $1 million
  • Latina women $1.1 million
Everyday Impact

• 1/4 Black and Latino older adults (60+) report not being taken seriously by health professionals because of their race.

• More than a quarter of older adults said they did not get care or treatment because of discrimination.

Justice in Aging’s Commitment to Advancing Equity

To achieve Justice in Aging, we must:

• Advance equity for low-income older adults in economic security, health care, housing, and elder justice initiatives.

• Address the enduring harms and inequities caused by systemic racism and other forms of discrimination that uniquely impact low-income older adults in marginalized communities.

• Recruit, support, and retain a diverse staff and board, including race, ethnicity, gender, gender identity and presentation, sexual orientation, disability, age, and economic class.
